A Peculiar Case.

Dr. H. C. Edmunds, of Elberton, Ga., writes: "A very peculiar and strange case of blood poison came under my attention a short time ago. A gentleman came here from Athens, Ga., where he had been bitten on the hand by a vicious mule that he was breaking to work. The hand was in a horrible condition, and the inflammation was rapidly extending throughout his entire system. Every knuckle on his hand was an ulcer that was deep and sloughing. He stated to me that he had consulted several physicians, and taken their medicines without deriving any benefit. I gave him a course of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), and in a few days he reported to me a marked improvement, and in one week from the time he commenced taking S. S. S. the hand was healed up and the poison entirely eradicated from his system. It is my opinion that he would have lost his life had it not been for the health-giving properties contained in Swift's Specific. He frankly admits himself that S. S. S. did the work."

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR.

HOW THINGS LOOK FROM OUR STAND POINT.

The Opinion of The Caucasian and the Opinion of others which we Can Endorse on the Various Topics of the Day.

Yesterday was the 25th anniversary of the sublimely sad climax of the most terrible war and grandest tragedy recorded in history. On April 9th, 1865, the peerless and beloved Gen. Lee surrendered to Gen. Grant at Appomattox Court House. 22,000 men laid down their arms. "The scene," says a historian, "was sublime. General Chamberlain chanced to be with his division in the van. A division of the Confederate army was marched up and paraded directly in front of them. All was as silent as the trees of the forest. Not a word was uttered—not a drum beat, but eyes were dimmed with tears unused to to weep, and lips trembled that knew no fear. The Confederates stacked their arms, leaned against them their banners and then silently filed away. As they came up Gen. Chamberlain called upon his men to 'present arms!' and thus these heroic survivors of a cruel war and surrender were received with military honors."

A number of our subscribers have mistaken the article on the "Monetization of Land" in the last issue, under the heard of "Forum of Public Opinion," for an Editorial, and we suppose the mistake arose from the position of the article. We were crowded for space last week and were compelled to leave out the "Editor's Chair," and in making up the form of matter for the press, the above article was accidently put in that column. By referring to the article you will soe that it was written by a gentleman whose nom de plume is "A Collard." We take this means of saying that we do not endorse all that the writer of the article said. His plan of land, instead of United States bonds as a basis of a banking systen, while better than the present system, we think, yet it would not bring the relief now most needed. We wish a system that will give immediate, permanent and safe relief to all producers. The subtreasury plan as enunciated and demanded of Congress by the St. Louis convention, we believe, will do this in a great measure and we shall stand by it, unless something better is offered. The great central idea of that plan is to give a currency that will always be measured exactly by the needs of the people—and in it we see the salvation of the poor farmers.

Mr. Bartholdi, the great artist, in whose brain was conceived the idea, and by whose hands was moulded the great statue of Liberty, expresses himself to a New York World reporter as being horrified at the idea and plan of Secretary Windom to turn Bedloe's Island, the footstool of "Liberty Enlightening the World," in New York harbor, into a dumping ground for immigrants.

"Instead of such a desecration," he says, "I always hoped that Americans would see the splendid use that is to be made of that island as I see it, namely, to turn it into a Pantheon for New York City, and by that reason for the whole United States. That is what it is clearly destined to be—a shrine of the history and glories of the United States serving the same purpose as Westminister Abbey for England, the Pantheon for France, the Acropolis for Athens, the Pincio and the Capitol for Rome. It should be a kind of ideal resort where should be kept alive the memories of all that is glorious in the history and geography of the United States.

"Thus around the base of the Statue of Liberty there should be grouped emblematical statues of the United States of America. In different parts of the island, laid out like a Greek grove, the statues of all the heroes of America should be placed. There should be statues of all the great men who have made America what she is, so that people going there would find themselves transported into a kind of American Walhalla.

"The people of America do not sufficiently take into consideration what a great part an ideal plays in the happiness of a nation. In Liberty Island by its situation, the Americans have a spot unique in the world for the home of a temple to the glorification of their wonderful nationality and the idealization of the strong poetry of their race.

"For the American race has a poetry of its own, which few, the Americans least of all, see—poetry in the cohesion into one mighty mass of elements so widely diverse, poetry in the the work they have achieved in the creation of a nation—a work unparalleled in the history of the world."

Yes, Bedloe's Island should be the Nation's park and the Nations museum—both of a distinctive Nathional character.

Later:—Congress has decided not to desecrate Liberty Island, but is now discussing Bartholdi's idea of a National Park.

Ellis Island has been selected for the future Castle Garden.

Judge Boykin Wins Encomiums in Pitt.

The Eastern Reflector, in a leading editorial, has the following to say of our distinunguished townsman: His Honor, Judge Boykin, has just closed a two weeks term of our court, and it is no reflection upon the distinguished Jurists who have preceded him to say that no court was ever held in the county which gave more universal satisfaction. The Bench and the Bar put themselves in harmony with each other in the very begining of the term for steady earnest work and both labored together to the very end of the term, and the result is that more cases were disposed of than we ever knew at any court before. We were frequently in court and were delighted with the manner in which the Judge pesided and conducted its affairs. Promptness and impartiality marked every step of his proceeding. No time was wasted in getting to work nor in the trial of the causes. The lawyers stated their position with brevity and clearness and the Judge decided with promptness and definiteness and that was the end of it. If now and then an attorney seemed to be disposed to waste time with a useless repetition of his arguments, the Judge with gentleness and kindness, but with firmness and positiveness, put proper restraint upon it and the readiness with which the Bar yielded to his decisions showed that the lawyers recognized in Judge Boykin a man of learning and eminent fitness for the high position which he holds. The people who attended court were greatly pleased and on all sides one could hear words of kindness and approval for the Judge. We still have a crowded docket, there being over two hundred civil cases yet for trial, and we hear a general desire for Judge Boykin to return to us in June and repeat his good work. In writing these words of approval of a public servant we are simply giving voice to the feelings and sentiments of Lawyers, Suitors, and people who were in attendence upon court and we do it with pleasure because it is so truly deserved.

It is an actual fact that cattle are selling in Cherokee county, Kansas, at one cent a pound. Just think of a 1,000 pound cow selling for $10! How does this strike you farmers? You could have sold these same cows in 1866 for $50 to $90. feeders in Kansas say they cannot pay over six cents a bushel for corn and feed to cattle at the present prices they are getting for them. SOMETHING INTERESTING TO THOSE WHO TILL THE SOIL.

"There is no material progress that is well based and permanent without agricultural progress."

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

A Well Attended, Very Interesting and Highly Profitable Meeting.

MUCH LEARNING AND EXPERIENCE, VALUABLE POINTERS, AND INTERESTING DISCUSSIONS ON MANY SUBJECTS OF PRIME IMPORTANCE.

Home-Made Fertilizers, Stock and Swine Raising, Silos and Ensilage, Fruit Culture, Etc., Etc., Etc.

In response to an invitation from the Sampson County Agricultural Society, Col. John Robinson, State Commissioner of Agriculture, and Profs. Massey and Chamberlain, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, arrived in Clinton on last Thursday evening for the purpose of holding a County Farmers' Institute on Friday and Saturday. By invitation they were the guest of Treasurer J. R. Beaman, during their stay.

FIRST DAY.

MORNING SESSION.

On Friday morning, in spite the inclement weather, a goodly number of our best farmers had put in their appearance to attend the Institute. At 10 o'clock Mr. W. K. Pigford, President of the Agricultural Society, called the Institute to order. By request of President Pigford, Rev. J. L. Stewart welcomed the Commissioner and the Professors to our town in a happy and appropriate talk of ten minutes.

The President then announced that the response by Col. Robinson would be postponed till the afternoon session, and that after the permanent organization by the election of officers, the Institute would adjourn, till the meeting of the County Alliance, (which was then in session) should be over, so that all could attend and be profited by the Institute work.

The permanent organization was effected by the election of J. R. Beaman, Esq., for President, and Marion Butler for Secretary. Adjourned till 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

When the Institute was called to order by President Beaman, not only was every seat in the Courthouse occupied, but many were compelled to stand. President introduced Col. Robinson, State Commissioner of Agriculture, who responded to the address of welcome as follows:

The farmer is the object of much more Solicitude at this time, than any other class, or perhaps all other classes combined. And as a consequence there is bestowed upon him any amount of gratuituous advice.

There never was a time when the forces of society for the enlightenment of the farmer class was greater than at the present day.

The great and prime object should be to reach the average farmer, and create in him a hungering and thirsting for more knowledge and for better knowledge. How can this, best be done?

The old way of reading and studying and experimenting—while it must not be dispensed with or ignored, is too slow and too uncertain for his great needs and demands at this juncture. What he needs is immediate help. He needs the experience of those who have succeeded wherein he has failed, he needs the experience of all who have succeeded in their special line of work. How better can this be accomplished than through Farmers Institutes, the object of which is to awaken a deeper interest in farming, and to impart practical information derived from experience in the various branches of agriculture.

In no other way can so much good be accomplished at so small an outlay as through Farmers Institutes.

Information that has been derived from practical experience upon the farm, the dairy, or the orchard is of more value than information derived from any other source to the practical farmer.

It is a place where may be had an interchange and exchange of views and opinions which are of incalculable value to every inteligent tiller of the soil. No farmer, fruit grower, or brooder of fine stock can afford to neglect attending a farmers Institute whenever an opportunity is afforded.

There is an influences attending them that is uplifting in its character, and a tendency to broaden and expand the views and opinions of all who participate, that develops more and more as the work progresses. In fact a farmers Institute is a school in which the experiences of practical men in the various branches of agriculture for nearly a life time is given without money and without price, to aid their fellow co-laborer in achieving more success in their several callings.

The calling of the farmer is a great study, a lifelong work, and no one can be successful in the pursuit of the vocation without a knowledge of the the principles upon which it is founded. We need constant intercourses with each other to be able to pursue with success this great study. And how better can this be accomplished than through Farmers' Institutes when the information and co-operation necessary may be had?

The State of Wisconsin no doubt has achieved more success and has as a natural consequence, received more benefit from the special work of Farmers' Institute than any other section of this continent so far as my information extends. And I would think that our own people could be induced to undertake the great and good work with the same spirit and enthusiasm.

The President then introduced Prof. J. R. Chamberlain, who opened the discussion on HOME-MADE FERTILIZERS.

The following is the gist of the Professor's highly entertaining and instructive discussion of the very important subject:

The slow and gradual development of farming can be traced down all the ages of the past. Each epoch has its improvements in agriculture the same as in all departments of trade and professions. He who neglects to keep step with the march of time must, in the course of events, fall behind and become the little fish in the great sea of progress.

Science in the past few years has made wonderful advancement, and we stand to-day with strained eyes and open mouth and look with wonder and admiration on new facts as they are brought to our notice. Yet the same simple laws govern all today that governed it ages gone by, and when these old truths appear in new forms we can't help but say wondrous things are being done, new facts are being discovered.

We live in an age of advancement. Close competition is crowding us on every hand.. We are not exempt in agriculture. and many of us, in order to keep up our incomes, have been willfully exhausting our lands without considering the consequences. We find we must change our methods. We all know something must be done, but there we stop.

HUMDRUM FARMING.

I heard Gov. Holt once say that if he used the same machines and followed the same methods he did 15 years ago in spinning cotton he would be a bankrupt in six months. Can we not draw a lesson from this?

There has been but little change in the methods followed in farming since we were boys, and we find ourselves to-day reaching that condition in which England found herself one hundred years ago, her lands depleted in fertility, her trade slipping away and a starving people looking with anxious eyes towards some means by which they could improve their condition. One hundred years ago the farming lands of England had become too poor to longer produce profitable crops. The best minds of the country commenced to to investigate the cause and look for remedies, which would aid the people and restore the land to a profitable state of fertility. England solved the mystery and for one hundred years her lands have been growing more fertile and her farms richer.

ENGLAND'S REMEDY.

She recognized the truth that if there was continued substraction with out any addition there would come a time when there would be nothing further to substract from. Without thinking, her people had been selling off the products of her lands and had not returned the elements of plant food taken away in the form of grain and produce.

Rotation, diversification and stock are the means by which England has changed, in a few years, her lands from a depleted condition to one of the most productive countries the sun shines upon.

GREAT IMPORTANCE OF STOCK.

Stock I consider the main foundation on which we are to construct the new agriculture. If we raise stock to the best advantage we must of necessity rotate and diversify. We make the mistake very often of calculating the return to us in cash from the sale of a certain crop without taking into account the loss of fertilizing materials from the soil for the production and sale of that crop. We must turn our attention to stock raising, not because there is great profit in it, but because it will help us to retain the fertility of our land and increase the yield of our money crops. Circumstances and taste must guide us in the selection of kind, breed and characteristics, but we must select some kind of stock and turn our attention to this industry.

For one I can never turn a cold shoulder to butter and cheese making, because of properly conducted it is a source of great wealth. I do not say that this can ever become a dairy county but it can be something of a stock county.

I want to say here in public that that manure produced by the cows in North Carolina is worth more in dollars and cents than the milk produced from these cows.

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

DRESS.

It is every woman's duty, first to herself, second to her family, and third to society to appear neat, attractive and to an advantage in every way possible.

The Charm of a Woman's Dress is its Poetry.

HEATH AND BEAUTY.

Mme. Patti the famous beauty is a philosopher as well as an artiste. "Good looks, which are nothing more than perfect bodily," heath she says, "are woman's stock in trade, while her talent, whatever it may be, is her capital. I have treasured both, but in doing so I had to forego many of the pleasures that the multitude of women enjoy. I never fret. I not only belive but know for a certainty that women fret away their youth and beauty. Care is a disease of the mind and as insidious as any that preys upon the body. At table I eat to live. I have what I want, but I never want what I know to be unhealty. Rare beef, fresh fruit and vegetable, bread and enough wine to keep me from choking make up my menu. I am very fond of coffee, but use it moderately. I am also fond of pastry and sweets, but never touch them. Success, if that is what you call my good health, I owe to fresh air, moderation and a quite life.

Some ladies have on fashionable dresses, while others wear gracefully fashionable dresses. And just there is the distinction between mere fashion and gentility.

The finishing touches are after all the stylish points that make the old dresses new. They are Fashion, for the skirt and basque have been what they now are for a decade. After the season of low-cut bodices fancy has gone to the other extreme, and now it is heresy to show a glimpse of neck. The waist is cut low so that the collar rests on the shoulder and towers up to the chin. The dressy collar is cut on the bias, stifened with canvas and wired like a hat so that it can be rolled down or raised as desired. This innovation is seen on cloth suits and occasionally on India silk toilet.

THE TABLE.

It has been said, "there are but a few things on which health and happiness depend more than on the manner in which food is cooked."

A List of Flavorings.

Last week in discussing the veriety of preperation of food for the table, and pointing out the mistake most cooks make in using salt and pepper as a seasoning for every thing and at all times, we advised every housekeeper to take an inventory of her kitchen closet, and if it did not contain a dozen or more different kinds of seasoning, to make haste to supply the deficiency. We have been asked by a lady to mention those seasoning. Instead of a dozen, we will mention too dozen or more.

To be used in cooking the daily bills of fare the store closet should contain mace, both powdered and in the loaf; cloves, allspice, cinnamon, nutmeg, bay leaves, celery seed or celery salt, parsley, burnt sugar, thyme, marjoram, onions, laurel leaf, garlic and even leeks, carrots, vinegar, tarragon, curry, catsups, tomatoes, mushroom and the variety of manufactured sauces, Liebig's extract of beef, white wine, sherry, chablis, madeira, brandy and masachino, lemon, Chili vinegar, parmesian cheese and browned flour or fried crontons crushed to a powder. These are the ordinary seasonings that should be used in every family and are used where good cooking is appreciated, and yet even such simple things are unknown quantities in many house or are regarded as unnecessary. The cook gets into the way of dropping in a pinch of salt and shaking the pepper box over the dish which is cooking and sends up every thing to the table with no further additions. It is a very easy way of cooking, and just as easy a road to faultfinding, for such cooking day after day palls upon the appetite and everything grows distasteful. Straightway go up the cries. "Nothing tastes good!" "Oh, dear! I wish you'd get a good cook," etc.

The whole trouble must be laid at the door of ignorance; many know of but few of these seasonings, and those who do, if they use them at all, use too much. Many of them are like cayenne pepper—hardly a grain is necessary. As illustrative, epicures have the hot plates, on which chops and certain game are served lightly rubbed with garlic, and, a very common example of overuse, inexperienced cooks put so much thyme or sage into the force-meat with which they stuff turkeys and ducks for roasting that their very presence on the table is distasteful to the sense of smell.

Besides the seasonings mentioned there are a host of foreign condiments which we now import, and which add to the flavor of many dishes that tickle the palate at the fashionable hotels. Naturally they lack one recommendation possessed by the above list—that of cheapness—but they are a valuable addition to the store closets of such as can afford them, and the list increases daily.

The fastidious epicure delights in the use Russian preparations such as pilaff, risolto, caviarre and other preparations of fish roe, stripped olives and the like, besides the quantities of foreign vegetables sent to us in various ways of preservation.

But aside from this, the list of cheap seasons mentioned above should be in every kitchen and properly used to vary the flavor of the same or different dishes each day.

A Man's Idea of Home Comfort.

A man wants some one place in his home that he can call his very own, some portion of the house where his will is law, where no conflict of authority can arise. This is not altogether for the purpose of securing solitude, for his family is usually most welcome there, but the need for it springs from the desire for that sense of proprietorship which is his habit abroad, and from the wish to do precisely as he pleases in at least a corner of his own house. Here should be the comforts that the man devises for himself, the lounging chairs, the desk and library, his smoking materials with license to use them. Here he should be able to feel absolutely at his ease, troubled by no fear of "mussing things," no need to thread his way anxiously through a maze of furniture and various decorative obstructions, trembling lest something should be overturned and broken, and there should be the seat of that admired disorder to which he only has the clue. His books and papers should be left as he leaves them, though to the orderly female eye they may seem to lie in hopeless confusion. His desk may be littered with piles of books, magazines, letters, manuscripts, everything that can possibly find a place there, but if a woman wishes to secure to a man one of his most cherished home comforts, she will let that desk alone.—Percy Vere in March Ladies' Home Journal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

SOMETHING INTERESTING TO THE YOUNG READERS OF THE CAUCASIAN.

The School in the Woods.

On Saturday last the primary department of the school conducted by the Rev. J. W. Turner, had a most enjoyable time. After spending a few of the morning hours at school the little ones repaired, with a few friends, to the neighboring woods, where they hunted Easter eggs, under the belief, if we may credit the report concerning some, that they had been laid by rabbits. The eggs were beautifully, or else grotesquely marked, so as to enhance the joy of the youthful seekers when so fortunate as to find them. In the course of their rambles—oh! marvel of marvels! wonderful to narrate, a tree was found in the woods hanging full of most delicious cakes, which the children afterwards enjoyed in a most practical way, eating them along with the eggs.

CLINTON, N. C.,—APRIL 10, 1890.

44 years ago to day was the first blood shed in the war between the United States and Mexico.

The Dukes of Durham spent last year $775,000,00 in advertising. Think of it over sixty thousand dollars a month.

The pension roll is alarming, it is a monstrosity. Let us no longer talk of direful war, but the direful pension consequences.

The latest despatch from St. Petersburg says: "The Czar of Russia is said to be extremely nervous and with cause." Wonder if he has sneezed? We guess Sampson's Bill Arp has spoken.

Hope, like a sunbeam, fell one day upon an event and Easter was born.

It was in the Spring, and the new voice uttered itself in violets.—N. Y. World.

The Daily State Chronicle of the 6th says: On Wednesday the site committee of the Baptist Female College will meet here for the purpose of selecting a site and to arrange for the beginning of work.

The Courier-Journal compliments the Knights of Honor in Louisville for the promptness with which they made a canvass of their membership in the ruined districts and the substantial relief and attention given the suffering,

North Carolina raises a pension fund of $80,000 annually by levying a tax of 3 cts, on the hundred dollars worth of property and 9 cts,on the poll. This puts her nearly at the head of the list of Southern States in liberality to the unfortunate confederate soldier; but is nothing compared to what this State contributes annually to penson the northern soldier. How much is it? $3,000,000!

Under the denomination "Republic of Central America" five States of that section will be consolidated and governed by one ruler, who will be known as the President. This course has been agreed upon by the Contral American Diet, comprised of representatives from Costa Rica, Guatemala, and Honduras, who were granted full power to act for their respective governments.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: While the terrible cyclone of last Thursday night probably caused a greater loss of life than ever resulted from any other natural phenomenon in Kentucky, a calamity befell this State in earlier days which would have been more appalling had the country then been as thickly people as it now is. It was the earth-quake of 1811, that completely destroyed the town of New Madrid, Mo., which was destined to be the great city of the Mississippi, and did much damage 300 miles around.

The negroes in Raleigh have startod a newspaper. The Editor in his announcement says:—The time has come, in our opinion, when the negro should act more for himself, and not allow himself to be shuffled and bartered by carpet-baggers and negro-haters as in the past. As it is said that we are liberated from our old masters, we now wish to be liberated from Boss Manning, "negro savage" Russell, Shaffer and the whole crew. The editor of this paper has a thousand times more respect for Gov. Fowle, Gov. Jarvis, ex-Gov. Scales, Senator Vance, and Senator Ransom than either of them. From such, the negroes, that is, the respectable portion of them will rid themselves yet. Wait and see."

"That tired feeling" is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives a feeling of buoyancy and strength to the whole system.

An avarage sized horse well fed will make one ton of solid and liquid manure every 40 days, or in the neighborhood of 9 tons per year. Who is there here who ever realizes this amount or any where near this amount from a horse or a mule of equal size?

This is a subject which used to trouble me, I knew as I know now we did not get any such amount of manure. What then became of the manure made by our animals?

THE WASTE OF MANURE.

After a time I learned that from 15 to 20 per cent of the manurial elements or plant food was lost when manure was exposed out of doors to the action of fermentation and leaching. I also learned that there was a great shrinkage in bulk. Horse manure exposed, lost in the course of four months, more than one half the valuable matter contained in it before pretrefaction. Several of the old agricultural writers have insisted that 100 loads of fresh manure may be reduced to 70 or 75 loads after 2 or 3 months fermentation and even to less than 50 loads at the end of a year.

Is this where our manure goes to?

It has been shown often in experiments that fresh manure, applied as made, produces as good crops as the same manure rotted, which you well see from the shrinkage mentioned above will not cover so many square feet.

If this statement then be true, we should stop doing so much mixing and handling over of manure, and apply it directly to the soil.

MAKE YOUR OWN MANURES.

The time has come when we as farmers (not planters) must place our dependence in farm manure for our fertilzer and not in manufactured guanos. This new agriculture then calls for more stock, more food, such a clover, peas, grain, and corn made into silage. Now we ask, how shall we make them in large supply and provide means for large quantities of manure?

THREE MEANS.

1st. By raising more plants on the farm and feeding them to animals.

2nd. By feeding to stock products, such as bran and cotton seed meal—products which should never be shipped out of the county, but fed to our animals.

3rd. By feeding liberally.

A ton of clover hay contains plant food valued at nearly $9.00. If it is fed to a mixed lot of cattle, the manure from feeding that hay would be worth 90 per cent of its original manurial value or in round numbers $8.00 per ton.

Take cotton seed meal for another illustration, compete its manurial elements at commercial values. A ton contains $28.00 worth of plant food, fed as above the manure would be worth 25,20. Cotton seed meal is largely used in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers and when we purchase nitrogen in this form we pay 17 or 18 cents a pound for it.

EXPENSIVE FOLLY.

Would it not be better economy to pass this cotton seed meal through cattle or sheep instead of through fertilizer manufacturers, and get the valuable and expensive plant food it contains for nothing?

I purchased a ton of bran a few weeks ago for $17.00 and the manure from it as above will be worth $11.75.

As the products I have named vary somewhat in their composition, and as the value of plant food may vary somewhat with locality, distance from seaboard, etc., let us deduct 10 per cent from the value given above, in order to be on the safe side, and to cover all possible contingencies and we have the following:

Value of manure produced from one ton of clover hay,	$ 7 20
Value of manure produced from one ton of bran,	10 00
Value of manure produced from one ton of cotton seed meal,	22 78

With these facts before you, will you go from this meeting and still insist on giving commissions to store keepers and pay good money for a poorer article than you can raise yourself and continue to pay no attention to the manufacture of home-made manure?

LEACHING OF MANURE.

We all produce some stable manure and we have some stock already. How do we take care of it? Let us see. You say you have your lot or yard well littered with pine straw, leaves, muck, etc. Very well. Let us figure a little and see what science tells with unmistakable words.

One inch of rain fall gives 100 tons of water per acre, 45 inches our average rain fall per annum gives 4,500 tons of water per acre each year.

A yard 100x110 feet contains almost exactly one-fourth of an acre. In one year this yard has 1,125 tons of water precipitated into it, to say nothing of that carried into it from the roofs of adjacent buildings. What becomes of this water? You know as well as I.

KEEP MANURE COVERED.

An investigation carried on at Cornell University showed every ton of water which passed through about one foot of untramped horse manure carried with it 60 cents worth of plant food. In an investigation of farm manures made under cover and which contained a liberal amount of straw it was found that a ton was worth $3.05 in one case and $3.60 per ton in another case or an average of $3.32 more than manure made in an open lot. Can you afford to leach the manure before it is carried to the field, or is it any wonder that some farmers think that farm manures are hardly worth saving?

The manure from a liberally fed and profitable milch cow may be safely computed at one half the cost of the food she consumes. Cows liberally fed and weighing, say 1,000 pounds, will make from three-fourths to one ton of manure per month at least $3.00 multiply these figures by the number of head and you will see the value of the manure crop.

IMPORTANT POINTS.

1st. First and all the time by stopping the cracks in the stable floor.

2nd. By abandoning the effort to make farm manures in the open yard.

3rd. By hauling the manure direct to the field from the stables when it is possible and always on sod or some growing crop.

Since there is quite a portion of the year when this cannot be done or ought not to be, we must provide some suitable receptacle for holding and preserving it intact till such time as it may be applied to the soil more advantageously.

The first step in preserving manure is to use plaster in the stables and on the mass when it is stored.

The second is to prevent heating to that degree that will drive off ammonia.

Third. Mix cow and horse manure if possible if it is to be stored.

Fourth. Make the receptacle for holding manure water tight and place it under cover.

Fifth. Absorb liquid manure with straw and any kind of bedding that is abundant, when it is not, use dry earth, or a cistern to catch the liquids, but always add some plaster unless the price is exhorbitant and here let me say, always apply manure where plants are growing, or where they will spring up very soon after the application is made.

While the able discussion was going on many slips of paper were dropped into the "question box." The questions were taken out and read by the Secretary, when thus followed a most interesting discussion among the members of the Institute and the Professors on the various points under controversy.

Some of the questions and information elicted were as follows:

Q.—Will heat in compost heap generate any element of plant food?

Ans.—No.

Q.—Is heat in compost of any special value?

A.—It is, by breaking up, decomposing organic matter and putting it in a soluble state, fit for plant food.

Q.—Is it safe to use lime in a compost heap?

A.—It is not, if the heap contains lot and stable manure. Lime coming in contact with the manure generates carbonate of ammonia, which is volatile and will escape, thereby losing one of the most valuable ingredients.

Q.—What can safely and to advantage be used in making such compost heaps?

A.—Land plaster.

Q.—How does it act on the manure?

A.—It can on a compost heap composed chiefly of muck, litter, though lime can be used to most advatage by putting it directly on the land.

Q.—What kind of land should it be put on?

A.—On land that contains a great deal of vegetable matter, or on some land that contains humus.

Q.—In the compost heap of thirty-five loads, which measured only twenty-five loads after rotted, what became of the missing ten loads and how can we prevent the loss?

A.—The loss was by evaporation during decomposition. This can be prevented by putting out the manure in a fresh state and allowing it to decompose in the soil, which catches and holds what would otherwise escape.

Q.—Will clover do well on such soil as we have in Sampson?

A.—It does best where there is a clay subsoil.

Q.—What kind suits this soil best?

A.—The Crimson Clover.

Q.—How and when should it be planted?

A.—It should be planted in the burr not cleaned. Clover will do best planted in the fall in this section, say last part of August or first of September. A hard rough surface of soil suits it best. No preparation is needed for the land. Sow the seed on the top of any rough, hard land, for instance where oats or peas or hay or cotton, or anything of the kind had been grown. Do not plow the seed under, but leave them lying on the ground. They will sprout and grow. A crop of this clover is worth $10.00 an acre to the land as a fertilizer. In short it is a profitable lazy man's crop.

Q.—Explain the making of ensilage and the structure of a silo.

Then followed a long discussion, in which our farmers got more interested and aroused than we have seen them in many a day. The chief points in this discussion we will give next week, also the proceedings of the Institute on Saturday. Time and space prevent us giving it all this week.

At Mr. T. A. Hobbs, in Halls township we noticed a fine heap of lot and stable manure, probably, six or seven hundred loads. We asked what he considered the manure worth. He said about $100. We asked how many cows he had. He said 15. We asked what he considered the cows worth. He said about $200. We asked what it had cost to feed them while making the manure. He said about $50. Think, you who depend upon commercial fertilizers, what this means. Here as 15 cows making each year a heap of manure worth in value half as much as the cows themselves, and worth double in value the feed given to those cows. In the mean time he had raised the cows. Therefore he was $250 richer than if he had failed to raise them.

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

The Religion of Light and Comfort.

A minister, whose name we could mention, in a sermon not long since drew a picture of Queen Victoria reading the Bible to a poor sick cottager. "There are royalty and poverty shaking hand over that book," he said. "What does it matter whether either of them read Greek or Arabic, their hearts understand the truths common to all men. Then why come to us and ask for the manufacture of a creed or system of theology for this denomination on that? It is ridiculous. What a man wants is light and comfort, and God's word will give him that in any denomination, with or without a creed."

"He's My Man."

The Durham correspondent of the State Chronicle says:—Dr. Yates preached a very fine sermon at Trinity church last Sunday from the words found in the 17th chapter of John, 20th to 23d verses inclusive. It was an antidoctrinal sermon, and one sentence struck your correspondent very forcibly: "What do I care whether a man believes in falling from grace or not? If he don't fall, he's my man."

M. E. General Conference.

The twelfth quadrennial session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will convene in the city of St. Louis, Mo., on the first Wednesday in May, 1890. It will be composed of an equal number of electrical and lay delegates representing thirty-eight annual conferences. These conferences are mainly in the southern and western States.

The approaching session of the General Conference will be replete with interest. It is the only legislative body of the church.

The General Conference elects the bishops. During the last quadrennium only one of the bishops has died, namely, Bishop H. N. McTyeire and his successor will be elected. Bishop Keener is now senior bishop. He is about seventy years of age, but is still active and doing full work. Our countyman D. B. Nicholson, Esq., is one of the lay delegates from the North Carolina Coaference.

Good Friday and Easter Sermons.

Divine service was held in St. Paul's church on Good Friday and also on Easter Day. The Rev. J. W. Turner, officiating. The text on Good Friday was Ps. XL, verses 8, 9 and 10.

The day was rainy and the attendance was smaller than it would have been if the weather had been favorable. A marked feature in the make-up of the congregation was the presence of the Sampson Light Infantry in a body, commanded by Capt W. A. Johnson. Their attendance was an agreeable surprise to both minister and people. The presence of bright uniforms and the leading of the congregation in singing by one of the soldiers made a most agreeable impression.

The preacher spoke of the lesson of the day as being that of self-sacrifice and illustrated it 1st by the self-sacrificing love of a parent for his child and, 2nd, by the sacrifice the soldier makes for his country when he lays down his life for his country's cause, ending with the infinitely greater sacrifice, Christ made on the cross to save mankind.

The service on Easter Day was a most enjoyable one. The weather was superb and the attendance was large. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens. The choir sang the hymns and chants delightfully.

The text was John XII, verse 24. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth much fruit.

The sermon told how the season of the year, agreeing with that of the church shadowed forth the springing up of a new life from the dead. It told how the farmer committed the seed to the ground, trusting that from the buried grain a new and more abundant life would arise. It spoke of the restlessness of age and its impatience to solve all mystery. Travelers, indeed, had explored the interior of the dark continent of Africa, but none had returned from the mysterious, unknown world beyond the grave to tell its secrets.

Christ, the one perfect corn of wheat, had died and descended into the grave and had risen again to bring life and immortality to light and to assure His redeemed of the life hereafter. He had died that they might have life and have it more abundantly. He had risen that they too might rise to a higher, better and more enlarged life.

☞[THE CAUCASIAN was adopted as the official organ of the County Alliances by the County Alliance, January 19th.☜

COUNTY ALLIANCE.

The county Alliance was called to order in Atkins' Hall promptly at 11 o'clock last Friday by President Stevens. Reports were received and accepted from 40 alliances, with a membership of over 1,600. The order is stronger more enthusiastic and in better working trim than ever. Col. John Robinson, State Commissioner of agriculture, Col. W. J. Green, and Profs. Massey and Chamberlain of the agricultural and mechanical college were present and called upon to address the meeting. The county lecture waived his lecture, in order that the alliance might adjourn to attend the Sampson County Farmers' Institute which was being held in the Court House under the auspices of the Sampson County Agricultural Society.

The Farmers' Alliance.

The object of the Farmers' Alliance, expressed in one word is education, the word used in its best, purest, and broadest sense, education that will reach from the cradle to the court, and will give us better homes, better schools, better politics, better legislation, and better administration of the laws; education that will give us better methods in the home, on the farm, in the store room, in the market places; education that will do away with every species of gambling in the products of labor, that will give the fullest freedom for trade consistent with the general welfare; that will secure reasonable compensation for labor and fair profits on its productions, education that gives the farmers even chances with his fellow citizens in every department of life and work, that will aid him in his farm work, in his business affairs, in trade, in politics, in law; education briefly, that will build up agriculture on a high, broad level, where farmers shall be in all respects with the foremost men of the time.---Kansas Farmer.

Hurrah for the Indian Hill Farmer's Alliance.

This week's Lexington Ledger says that the Indian Hill Farmers' Alliance met at Miss M. P. Beck's, a member of the order in Davidson county, on Saturday the 22d of March, 1890 and built ninety pannels of fence, and repaired 123 pannels more for her, as she was not able to do the work herself.

It is such deeds as these that show the value of organization. It was very much easier for an organized body of farmers to have done this work of gallant charity than it would have been to have gotten the some number of men without organization to have done the noble work.

By the same token, there is abundant evidence that the hearts of the members of Indian Hill Alliance lie on the right side, and that their action is healthy. These farmers have added another star to the diadem of glory that surrounds the front of this noble old State.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

—Special drill of the Sampson Light Infantry to-night—every Thursday night.

—We understand that Little Coharie, is not worked, that there are no overseers and that raft hands find much trouble in passing from Parker's bridge down. The magistrates should look into the matter.

—Mr. W. K. Pigford, Capt. C. Partrick, Sheriff Spell and several others tell us that the huckleberries were not killed by the frosts—that the bushes are now in full bloom. Sampson Blues are hard to down.

—All ladies who feel an interest in the Sampson Light Infantry, and are willing to aid in the entertainment for the benefit of the company are requested to meet at the College next Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock to perfect arrangements.

—We take pleasure in clipping from the Eastern Reflector and reproducing an article concerning Judge Boykin, which was called forth by the able and efficient manner in which he conducted the last term of the Superior Court in Pitt. His Honor wins enconiums from the Press wherever he goes.

—The County Commissioners were in session Monday. Licenses were granted to parties at Roseboro and Autryville to sell whiskey. The tax listers for the county, one of each township, were appointed. There was some increase of grants of assistance to paupers, but was temporary—simply for this month. Their names were not entered on the regular pauper list.

—You have taken my paper and read it, and as an honest man, of course, will pay for it, but you have not yet done so. Excuse me for calling your attention to the fact again, but I need the money. If you can't pay now call up and see me about it. This is not intended for all my subscribers. As I turn the leaves of my mailing book I could call the names, but you know whether it refers to you or not.

—We have suggested several times to the Railroad authorities that it would be a great convenience to our people, the travelling public and persons along the line of the W. & W. Road, who come up to Clinton nearly every day shopping, to have the locomotive whistle to blow ten minutes before the departure of the train. This suggestion has at last been adopted and every one now has ten minutes grace in which to catch the train.

On our way to Ingold last Saturday, we noticed that there were several patches of burnt woods on either side of the road. The turpentine trees were badly burned and many of them dead. We enquired the cause, and were told that the fires nearly all occurred on Saturday evening and were supposed to have originated from stumps of cigars. Those who smoke along the road should be more careful, especially at this season of the year.

—Capt. W. A. Johnson has received at official invitation from the Lee Monument Association to go to Richmond, Va., May 27th and participate in the unveiling ceremonies of the Lee Monument. Col. Jones, the commander of the Second Regiment, is very anxious to take the entire regiment. The expense will be slight and the time absent will be but two days, and Capt. Johnson says that if 25 or 30 men of the Sampson Light Infantry will go, that he will be pleased to take them.

—On behalf of the young men, who were fortunate enough to be present, we desire to return thanks to the members of the Young Ladies' Cooking Club for the happy entertainment given and elegant collation served at the residence of Dr. A. M. Lee on Tuesday evening. The Editor of this paper would certainly be fortunate if he could persuade the Club to edit the table division of the "Woman's Sphere" department of this paper.

Millinery--Spring Opening.

The Spring Opening at the millinery establishment of Moore & Partrick, on last Friday and Saturday, was a decided success, both as to display and sales. The large and elegant store was tastefully and artistically decorated from one end to the other. The display of laces; edgings, ruchings and insertions; wreaths, flowers and trimmed hats, the handsome drapery on bust and dummy, the beautiful ribbon and flower bells, and the graceful stand of waving plumes specially attracted our attention. There was also much skill shown in the arrangement of dress goods, so as to show the pleasing combination of colors. The arrangement of silk handkerchiefs, mitts, gloves and collars was also noticeable. The front show case was a beauty. The store was packed with customers and admirers of tasteful and beautiful display. The proprietors and their clever saleslady, Miss Stanford, were busy, smiling and happy. It gives us pleasure to make a note of such enterprises.

HONEYCUTTS.

A trip to Salem again and I passed that same new building again in the branch, and I saw another new house by the side of it, and heard such a chatter and blowing I thought every thing in the house must be running away, so I concludhd to stop and see what was the matter. I went to the door and found it was a rice separater just purchased by Mr. J. C. Howard, I stood and watched the thing a while, and saw all the rough rice going out at one end of the thing and the clean rice going out at the other. It separates every rough grain from the clan rice so that you will not have it to pick and blow all the trash out of it, and leaves it perfectly clean. This is one of the most complete machines I ever saw, it worth any man's time to go and see the thing shuffle. As I said before, I always find something new in that part of the township. I found that the genial and clever Prof. G. E. Butler, Principal of Salem High School enthumidie over his work. He has just enrolled some new boaders. CAPTAIN.

Mr. Editor: As "Jennie" and "Rosy," have not been heard from lately, they will now make their appearance, if Mr. Editor will allow them room in his most excellent paper. We do think that THE CAUCASIAN is one of the best papers we have ever read, and would not be without it for anything.

Mr. Alvin Royal has a strong notion of moving, and leaving "we good people" of Honeycutt's.

From Garland to Autryville.

On Monday THE CAUCASIAN interviewed Mr. Pope, who had been over on the C. F. & Y. V. Extension, representing a flour concern. He said that there was every evidence of prosperity along the line of the new railroad.

GARLAND.

At Garland there were a number of new buildings going up and many freight trains going and coming, loading up with naval stores and unloading goods. The moving spirits of the place are Messrs. E. C. Herring and J. D. Johnsen.

PARKERSBURG.

At Parkers there are two store, finished and several residences being built, There is a good station building, a telegraph office and a lumber factory. Col W. J. Parker & Sons are the moving spirits.

The push and enterprise of Capt. J. L. Autry is plainly seen in the growth of this place. He has a grocery, hardware, dry goods and drug store, respectively in charge of his clever salesmen, Messrs S. J. Faircloth, Burnis Culbreth and J. T. Williams. Capt. Autry has also built a hotel for the accommodation of the traveling public, and has already commenced to beautify the place.

Mr. Pope did not go by Roseboro, but understood that it was keeping pace with the general progress along the line.

Our young friend, Wentworth S. Micks, who has acceptably discharged the duties of teller at the bank here the last few months, left for Atlanta last Friday morning, whether he goes to fill the position of principal book-keeper in the large clothing house of Schloss & Fetzer, of that city. The firm is to be congratulated in securing his services, for he is not only an accomplished accountant but is also a most exemplary young man, being energetic, industrious, thoroughly moral, altogether reliable. In short, he is a perfect type of the gentleman under all circumstances. We confidently commend him to his employers. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends here.

Proud of the Caucasian.

An esteem subscriber residing in another State, who is a brainy young man and college graduate, writing to us under date of March 19th says:

In answer to your call of a few weeks ago I inclose a postal note for one dollar and fifty cents to pay for one year's subscription to THE CAUCASIAN. If you will promise to publish neither my name nor address in the paper, I will add my feeble testimony to that of the many who have so justly complimented you on the success of you paper. It makes me proud to know that my native county can furnish its people with such an excellent paper, managed by native talent. The last few issues have been unsually good. T.

Died---Two Sampsonians.

[Special to THE CAUCASIAN]

Fayetteville, April 7th.—Two of our prominent townsmen, who were natives of Sampson county, viz: Sheriff H. C. Fisher and Mr. J. Vann died on last Sunday night, 6th inst. The former was in robust health, but was taken with a sudden and violent attack of pneumonia which proved fatal. There is already much speculation among the politicians as to his successor. The latter aged 63 years died of congestion of the liver. He first married the daughter of Mr. G. W. Robinson. The widow that he now leaves was Mrs. Richardson Tatum and this is the third time she has been a widow. X.

Later: The Commissioners to-day appointed Capt. James B. Smith, Fayetteville's ex-postmaster, to fill the vacancy in the Sheriff's office.

IN MEMORIAM.

THOMAS K. BRYAN.

The subject of this brief sketch was born near Taylor's Bridge, in the county of Sampson, on the 16th day of Oct. 1828. Except a break of four years during the war, when he acted as commissary in Wilmington, N. C., his life was spent in and near his native county. In 1881, he moved to Faison, Duplin county where he remained until his death, which took place on 12th day of March, 1890. Some four years previous to his demise, he was stricken with paralysis, from which he never fully recovered, and which disease was the cause of his death. On Sunday, March 9th, he was suddenly seized with his last attack, and gradually grew weaker until he peacefully and quietly breathed his last.

Mr. Bryan was held in high esteemed by his friends and neighbors. He was brave and warm hearted, obliging and genial. Prehaps his most prominent virtue was his sterling entegrity. He was honest to a fault and had the greatest regard for the rights of others: Early in life he connected himself with the Baptist church. His membership was at Beulah, Sampson county. He died in simple trust on the Lord Jesus Christ. During his long illness, he suffered much but his was that Higher Wisdom which through suffering is made perfect.

Mr. Bryan was married in 1867 to Mrs. S. A. Shaw, daughter of Mr. Wm. Faison and relict of Dr. E. F. Shaw who was killed in the war. To his bereaved wife and his two sorrowing daughters, one of whom is in distant Arizona we tender our deepest sympathies. M.

[Reg. Cor. CAUCASIAN.]

Bean planting has been the chief work for the past week.

It appears that our Baptist brethern adopted the tithe law, or compulsory payment plan at their late conference. It has always been our opinion that the work of spreading the gospel, was intended to be a labor of love, not law. This law of Moses was given expressly to provide for the tribe of Levi who received no inheritance with the other tribes. There was no such law before Moses nor after him.

Christ certainly did not give his church a tithe law. It can't be found in the new testament, and money forced from the pockets of church members by threats of expulsion & etc., is unconsecrated cash nor fit to enter the Lords treasury. Christ said through his apstles "every man according as he purposeth in his heart not grudgingly or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver."

We know how and by what argument the tithe men meet this position, but they misconstrue the scriptures. The Baptists are not shylocks and to turn men out of the church because they are too poor to pay certain amounts exacted of them or who entertain different opinions as to the mode of giving is assuming a fearful responsibility to say the least of it. We believe members of the Baptist church ought to give of their means for religious and benevolent purposes voluntarily never forced. Forcible collections in a Baptist church are contrary to Baptist usage and doctrine, for Christ said to John "the lame walk, the blind receive their sights and the poor have the gospel preached to them. DRUNKENNESS—LIQUOR HABIT—In all the World there is but one cure, Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.
It can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it, effecting a speedy and permanent cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been cured who have taken the Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and today believe they quit drinking of their own free-will. No harmful effect results from its administration. Cures guaranteed. Send for circular and full particulars. Address in confidence, GOLDEN SPECIFIC Co., 185 Race Street, Cincinnati, O.

SAMPSON'S BILL ARP

He Innocently Gets Into Trouble, --Is punished With a Rhetorical Flogging.--He Puts on His War Paint and Fights Back With the Same Weapon.

[Special Correspondence to THE CAUCASIAN.]

I went down into the field the other day to see how the boys were getting along finishing planting the upland corn. They were getting along all right, but I noticed where the corn was sprouting the crows had begun to pull it up, so I think I will get me a little strichnine and soak the corn in it and feed them crows to death. As I came along back I met up with a gentleman. I said good morning, what do you think of the weather bureau. He evidently did not understand me, for he did not wait one minute to ask a question, but puffed up, got mad and lit in on top of my cranium, circled down my neck, jerked the loop-holes out of my suspenders, split my shirt, tore my pants, busted off the heels of my shoes, took me up and shook my toenails off. At last he held up on me for a minute and I had time to get my breath and collect my senses. I again said good morning sir, who are you, were you born and raised where you now live? You are away from home. I think you are in a sensible community, where the people are allowed to speak of the sun, moon and stars and even the weather prophet, Mr. Greely, who everybody called Old Probability. Again he did not understand me, or had not kept up with the times, so he gouged my eyes, broke my nose, filled my ears full of sand, mopped up the earth with me, and made me a disgusting sight for my folks to look at. He had beat himself to death flogging me. He met up with a friend and he asked him, what is the matter. You look like you have been in a fight, you are pretty badly used up. Yes, but you ought to see Sampsons Bill Arp. I have been itching for a fight for some time. He has been talking about politics pretty freely for some time and he is rather offensive and some folks believe him. He asked about the weather and I thought it was a good excuse, so I would say it was sacriliegious and it would go light with me and would not cost me anything, and it was a good time to kill him out. What did you beat him for? he is on your side. Well, I get my name in the paper, a good free fight and I come out a victorious hero.

After he was gone I began to get mad, and when he was clean gone and I was out of further danger, I got mad sure enough. I right then determined to write him a letter. I began to pick myself up joint at a time. Something had hit me; I did not know what it was. I would say lightning, but I can't refer to the elements to point a moral with, for fear of being call sacriliegious. I would say "breaker," but that eminated from the same great source "God made" him, therefore let him pass for a man." But how shall I commence my letter to him? Well, here it goes

MR. "BREAKER—Sir:

I ain't much on a fight, I had a heap rather make you laugh, but if we have got to fight, I guess we had better become acquainted. You say you do not know me. I presume you are intimately acquainted with Queen Victoria, Prince Bismark, Mr. Gladstone, ex-Emperor Dom Pedro and Ben Harrison. They all use to be associates of mine, and I have played hobbyhorse with Ben many a day, but we did not agree on politics and he cut my acquaintance and I am now associated with Mr. Edison in the discovery of destructables. I have 149 gallons salphuric acid, 92 of nitric acid and an inexhaustible amount of infusorial earth, which, in proportional quantities, maker dynamite. If you will allow me to substitute some glycerine I will call you on time before you find out the name for that. Whoop, look out, I am coming! Hurricane is my daddy and cyclone is my mammy, and I was raised in a thunder storm. I drink soup through gun-barrels and I carry a hundred and ninety-nine caliber cannon in my vest pocket as a body guard. When I walk out the birds of the air rise up and fly, men's eyes turn green, the wild beasts of the plains go on a stampede, and when I speak you can hear the Czar of Russia sneeze(his throne crack and totter, and he raises his crown and tells me he is going to turn loose all the prisoners in Siberia and never intends to incarcerate another man because he does not have the same opinion he has got.

Now, if you are ready, I have four pistols, five lawyers six juries (from Wake county, N C.,) thirteen judges and one Governor, who will pardon me for the little offence of demolishing you. I guess you had better drop me a few lines when you are ready. My postoffice is Europe at large. When you get your letter well on the way you must start in that direction, and when you get there I am certain I will be in Australia studying the Australian system of voting to quell the United States with, to perpetuate Wildcat Speaker Reed's law with himself, to make laws so the people will be afraid to stay here and scared to run, and as long as I can get ink to flow off of a little steel pen I am going to tell the people the evils that are being perpetrated on them if I have to make my home in Liberia.

In all seriousness, I had no intention of trying to teach any disrespect to the Almighty, and am very sorry the gentleman so construed it, and when he knows more of me I trust he will be ashamed of his hasty conclusion.

Can good come out of Nazereth?
